The Waffle House locations in Pittsburgh are a good example of an anomaly to me. I've never been to a Waffle House that wasn't overcrowded, but as of this date, I have been to five in Pittsburgh. You will see the crowds at the Waffle House during the Steelers and Pirates home games, but you will see them during college bowl games, Steelers playoff games, and any extended matchups between the Steelers, Pirates, or the Penguins. The crowds are beyond a normal Pgh bar scene. Now, if you're wondering why the Waffle House is so crowded with people when the Food Network's ratings are typically lower than most people give them credit for, let me throw in another reason. The Waffle House of Pittsburgh is better than the Waffle House on television Take a look at this picture of a crowd outside the Waffle House in Pittsburgh during the 2016 3da54e8ca3
