Download: Drop In Theme FreeMath Curse Math Curse is the third studio album by American metalcore band Converge. It was released on September 13, 2014 through Epitaph Records. It is the first Converge release since the 2011 death of guitarist Kurt Ballou. Converge spent an entire month working on the album after releasing the EP All We Know Is Falling, before it was released on Epitaph. Matt Pelissier described it as "a musical challenge to come back and keep the energy up." The album was preceded by a single "A Shrine to Failure". Background and recording After leaving previous label Epitaph, Converge signed to the label for their next album with singer Jacob Bannon. With drummer Jacob Bannon and bassist Ben Koller taking over from Kurt Ballou and Nate Newton respectively, Converge recorded Math Curse at their own Hartwick College recording studio. Despite his eight-year absence, Converge had not lost their ability to write fast and intense songs. Pelissier described the album as "the most energetic record in the band's 09e8f5149f
