Here is what I'm trying to do: var object = new MovieClip(); object.gotoAndPlay(1); object.alpha = 0; var object2 = new MovieClip(); object2.addChild(object); object2.gotoAndPlay(1); var object3 = new MovieClip(); object3.addChild(object2); object3.gotoAndPlay(1); My problem is that I only see the first object. I should see the first one and the second one in a div. What's wrong here? A: All MovieClips inside an MovieClip must be nested using addChild and not addChildAt: So the correct way to do what you describe is: var object = new MovieClip(); object.gotoAndPlay(1); object.alpha = 0; var object2 = new MovieClip(); object2.addChild(object

Yubikey is the ultimate and original in-ear device designed for total security. With the YubiKey 2.0, you can log into websites or your e-mail account, and most importantly, you can access the smartcard functionalities without having to remember or write a PIN. Security is a great thing. The security offered by YubiKey 2.0 makes no compromise to the modern world of technology. You will never need to remember any PIN code again. Instead, YubiKey can simply be attached to your finger and used to access your websites or e-mail accounts. You will be able to log into your accounts without having to type in your username and password, or risk someone peeking over your shoulder to see your PIN. You can perform certain operations without having to insert and remove the SmartCard. You can use the biometric verification of YubiKey to make payments using PayPal, eBay and other web-based e-commerce. You can unlock your phone, PC or tablet, or play the YubiKey Portable to unlock it. Even in the secure environment of the browser, you can protect your financial account by requiring only the YubiKey to make transactions. YubiKey is an easy and intuitive device. It's smaller and more discreet than any smart card, so there will be no need to carry it around. It will not look like any normal hardware device, so you will not be forced to carry it around with you. It is compatible with Windows XP, Vista, 7 and 8, and Mac OS 10.6 or later. With the YubiKey 2.0, you can do it all. New Features: * Great news for Linux users. If you use Linux, you can use YubiKey hardware as a PAM module to unlock your device and use it as a login token. * YubiKey will now act like any smartcard, so you will not need to type in your PIN or enter a code. * You can now use YubiKey with many different operating systems, including Android. * You can now use YubiKey with your favorite web browser. * You can now use YubiKey for PayPal transactions. * You can now use YubiKey to unlock your mobile phone, tablet, and even your PC. What's new? * Added YubiKey Portable mode to make payments using your YubiKey without having to have a PIN. * Added YubiKey Lite mode to make payments using your YubiKey without having to have a PIN. * Added YubiKey Neo mode to make payments using your YubiKey without having to have a PIN. * Added YubiKey 5C mode to make payments using your YubiKey without having to have a PIN. * Added YubiKey 5C Neo mode to make payments using your YubiKey without
